GRIEF IN LONDON.

LONDON, Jan. 23.

The people were in the greatest fear in London on Tuesday, and their grief grew more poignant and more intense as each bulletin was published.

The telegram from the King to the Lord Mayor, announced at 7 o'clock, was the first intimation of the Queen's death, and it ended the suspense.

The general feeling was one of stunned bewilderment, drowning all expressions of grief and of the real extent of the nation's loss.

The chairman of the London County Council said that his Majesty was the best loved and most illustrious of all our monarchs.

At the usual Hilary term dinner at Gray's Inn, the Master, Mr. Beaumont, said, "We must according to constitutional usage recite 'God Save the King.'" The chapel bell then tolled 92 times. The health of the King was honoured.

All the bells of the churches of the city tolled, following the deep, strong, mournful note of the great bell of St. Paul's.

The bell of St. Martin's, Charing Cross, was then unannounced to welcome the King.

CONDOLENCE FROM LONDON.

LONDON, Jan. 23.

The Lord Mayor, Alderman Frank Green, addressing the King, has tendered the condolence of the city of London, and its deep feeling of sorrow on the death of the Queen of cherished memory.

Sorrow in the provinces.

The curfew bell at Windsor tolled a knell in memory of the Queen.

The bells of churches in the provinces, at Balmoral, and along the whole Dueside also tolled.

The Government represented by Mr. A. J. BALFOUR.

LONDON, Jan. 23, 1.35 a.m.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, representing the Government, left London early yesterday afternoon for Osborne.

AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

JUGS AND BEATLEHEADS CROWDS.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE LORD MAYOR.

LONDON, Jan. 23.

A huge, earnest, and breathless crowd gathered at the Mansion House last night.

A window was opened, and all heads were instantly bowed.

The Lord Mayor, Alderman Frank Green, leaning for support on the sill of the window, addressed the people. His voice was broken, but it soon became audible to the thousands below him.

The Lord Mayor said, "Citizens, it is with the deepest regret that I announce the death of her Majesty, Queen Victoria."

The Lord Mayor then read the following telegram from the King to the Lord Mayor, announced at 7 o'clock, was the first intimation of the Queen's death, and it ended the suspense.
